“Arx Lumina” and the Motivation for Daily Routines

Life is earnest - and always has been.

Life is earnest - and always has been.

Richard Wagner

i.e. life sucks?

Concept

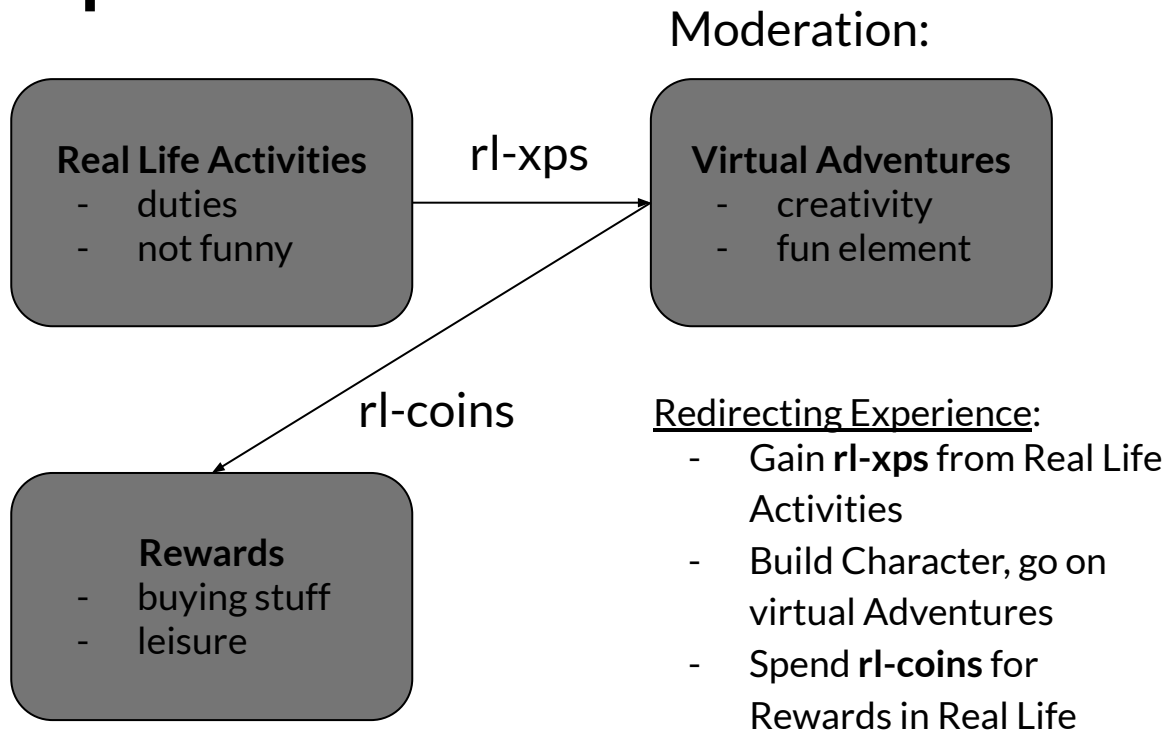

Main Problem:
Decay of extrinsic Motivation

Leads to:

- Decoupling Rewards from Activities
- Neglecting Activities

Concept

Examples for Real Life Activities

- Household
- Sports
- Health and Well-being
- Education
- Work
- ...

You earn rl-xps from this

Examples

Coupling RL-Activities and virtual Games is already possible:

- Earn Ingame-Currency by doing RL-Activities
- Buy virtual stuff (e.g. new mount, new weapon skin)
- Have fun adventuring

But:

- No reward in Real Life
 - Problems of Slide 3 apply

Examples

Better:

- Bundle “dull” RL-Work and “cool” virtual Work
 - Then: Get RL-Reward

Further Considerations

Challenges:

- How to keep gaining rl-xps attractive?
 - Raising difficulty of dungeons continuously (i.e. easy dungeons already looted)
 - Start new Character once in a while (maybe son/daughter, so you build up a heritage)
 - Use rl-xps not only for character progression (I absolutely want to do smthg. in the virtual World. Have to get rl-xps.)

Further Considerations

Motivation Elements (some of Jon Radoff's 42 fun things):

- Collecting
 - Finding Random Treasures
 - Gaining Recognition for Achievements
 - Customizing Virtual Worlds
 - Exchanging Gifts
 - Imagining Yourself as a Character
 - Competition
 - Mystery
 - Strengthening a Family Relationship
 - Exploring a World

Further Considerations

Using AI as a Game Master:

- Should be accessible for Everyone at no Cost
 - Can be fed with Ruleset and Lore
 - Can keep Information on Character Progress
 - Is an extraordinary good Storyteller

Example

Real Life Gaming for Mental Health at Work

- Get rl-xps for your daily tasks (simplest form: 1xp per completed work day)
- Important: Agency

Team with other to go on Raids, PvP

- Could also be automated (auto-battler)

Result

Less Motivation to get work done turns into ...

... more Motivation to progress virtual Character
